Trial Court Case No. 3PA-16-01858CI

In Yvonne Gambini's opening brief, she raised an issue about a qualified domestic relations order that was apparently entered after the divorce decree. We did not address that issue in our opinion issued on March 29 because the superior court documents relating to that order are not in the appellate record. But taking Ms. Gambini's self-represented status into account, we did not rule that she had waived this issue. Accordingly to address this issue,

IT IS ORDERED that if Ms. Gambini wants to challenge this qualified domestic relations order, she shall file with the clerk a copy of the order on or before 5/13/2019. The clerk will supplement the appellate record with all superior court filings through the date of that order and provide the parties with a digital copy of this supplemental record. Ms. Gambini may then file a memorandum of up to five pages including any argument she has on this issue within fifteen days of the distribution of the supplemental record. Mr. Gambini may file a similar memorandum within fifteen days after service of Ms. Gambini's memo.

Entered by direction of an individual justice.
